To whom it may concern,

This letter comes as recommendation for Mr. Jedd Bradley's services as an educator for active shooter situations and preparedness. We are pleased to inform you that our company had Mr. Bradley present an educational and awareness training on active shooter situations to our employees on Wednesday, December 13, 2017 and we were very pleased with the outcome.

Mr. Bradley's knowledge and delivery was invaluable to our employees. Active shooter situations and preparedness for these acts of violence are scary discussions and can elicit emotional responses by each individual audience members, but Mr. Bradley's approach to his training was well received by our staff. Our employees found his discussion most helpful in understanding why we need to prepare for these unpredictable acts of violence; not only in the workplace, but in our everyday life. Mr. Bradley's knowledge of this subject, backed with his 18 + years of service to the community and training as an Officer is evident in his discussion. I was most impressed with how easily he connected to everyone in the audience. You can tell he is truly passionate on this topic.

Our active shooter training was a success due to Mr. Bradley. If we are ever in need of this training again, I will certainly not hesitate to contact Jedd to conduct this training again with our staff. I am quick to recommend his services to others so we have more individuals aware of picking up cues and/or knowing how to get out of an active shooter situation and survive. Therefore, I strongly recommend Jedd Bradley's services to any person, company or organization wanting to train on the topic of active shooter situations.

I'm available via phone or email if you have further questions.

Sincerely,

Carrie L. Mueller
